Consider Aadhaar, other IDs in Bihar drive: Supreme Court

Delhi: The Supreme Court asked the Election Commission of India (ECI) to also consider Aadhaar cards, voter IDs and ration cards, as acceptable proof of eligibility for inclusion in electoral rolls in its ongoing special intensive revision (SIR) of the list in Bihar, even as it agreed to examine whether the poll body's exercise violated legal provisions or could potentially lead to mass disenfranchisement ahead of assembly elections due later this year. Underlining that the matter "goes to the root of the functioning of the democratic republic" and involves "the right to vote," a bench of justices Sudhanshu Dhulia and Joyimalya Bagchi said it would examine three key questions -- ECI's powers to conduct such an exercise, the manner in which the SIR is being conducted, and its timing, and

EC: 3 out of 4 Bihar voters have filed enumeration forms

Delhi: The Election Commission of India (ECI) press notice states that three out of four Bihar electors have submitted their enumeration forms for the Special Intensive Revision (SIR) of electoral rolls. Since the SIR directives were released on June 24, 5.87 crore (58.7 million) forms (74.39% of total) had been collected. The EC stated around 77,000 Booth Level Officers (BLOs), fixed the matter for next hearing on July 28. The court also directed the poll body to file its counter affidavit within a week

20,603 newly appointed BLOs, election officials, and over 400,000 volunteers are working to collect and digitize forms for the Bihar assembly elections later this year. DU will discuss the Viksit Bharat curriculum and Gita-based courses

Delhi: According to officials, the standing committee of Delhi University (DU) will meet to evaluate suggestions for a number of value addition courses (VAC), including four that are centered on the Bhagavad Gita and one called An Introduction to Viksit Bharat. The committee's emphasis on incorporating modern applications of Indian philosophy and development topics into the curriculum is highlighted in the agenda, which was made public on Wednesday.

With themes like "Gita for Holistic Life," "Gita and Leadership Excellence,"

"Gita for Sustainable Universe," and "Gita for Navigating Life Challenges," four of the six VACs that are being considered are centered around the Bhagavad Gita. Based on Karmayoga, Jnanayoga, and Bhaktiyoga, the Gita for Holistic Life syllabus suggests teachings on self-management, resolving problems in modern life, and methods of action, knowledge, and devotion. The course will also include practical components. The other courses will cover similar thematic applications of Gita's teachings to leadership, sustainability, and life's problems. Gita may undoubtedly be able to offer us some direction, but it seems ridiculous to introduce so many VACs on Gita. In addition to practical elements like field trips to communities, self-help groups, and farmers' organizations, the proposed chapters will address the role of technology, infrastructure, agriculture, and sustainability, he said. A VAC titled "The Science of Happiness" is also on the schedule. The Centre for Hindu Studies has also suggested starting a PhD program in Hindu Studies, which is anticipated to begin.

The job obtained with fake documents will be considered void from the appointment itself

Rejected

□ Te petition of the dismissed teacher has been rejected: High Court

Akhand Bharat Sandesh

Prayagraj. The Allahabad High Court said that if a person gets a government job on the basis of fake documents, then his appointment will be considered void from the beginning. Such persons cannot make any legal claim on the salary and other benefits received from the job and they will have to return all the amount received. This order was given by Justice Manju Rani Chauhan on the petition of Kamlesh Kumar Nirankari. The petitioner was working as an assistant teacher in a primary school in Ballia. After investigation on a complaint, after it was confirmed that he got the job on the basis of fake documents, the Basic Education Officer canceled his appointment by order dated 6 October 2022. Also ordered the recovery of the salary given. The petitioner challenged this order in the High Court. The petitioner's advocate argued that the petitioner was appointed to the post of assistant teacher on 10 August 2010 and he never committed any forgery. He had submitted all the educational documents but his job was canceled without proper hearing. This is against the principles of natural justice. There was a difference in the name in his PAN card, Aadhar card and educational certificates. This was due to the error of the concerned authorities. The petitioner has no role in this. Fake documents confirmed in the verification report. The respondent advocate argued that the petitioner had obtained the job on the basis of fake mark sheets and certificates. He had used the documents of another person Kamlesh Kumar Yadav. The police verification report also confirmed that no person of that name lives at the address given by the petitioner. Even after giving him several chances, he was unable to produce his original documents. After hearing the parties, the court found that the arguments of the respondent were correct. Citing the previous decisions of the Supreme Court, the court said that an appointment obtained by fraud is void from the beginning and in such a case a detailed investigation is not required. Serious discrepancies in the name and inability to produce original documents are evidence of fraud. Therefore, the order to cancel the job and withdraw the salary is valid. The court upheld the order of the BSA and dismissed the petition.

Editorial

Civil servants are running India's regulatory bodies

Looking back at India's reform story of more than three decades, it is worthwhile to recall that economic liberalisation of the 1990s had a few implicit assumptions of how an economy should function and grow on a sustainable basis. One of those assumptions followed from the government decision to allow the private sector to operate in areas that were hitherto monopolised by state-owned enterprises. Under such liberalisation, it was assumed that while the government would continue to frame policies for areas opened up to the private sector, the regulation or enforcement of those policies would be undertaken by independent regulators through rules framed by them. A classic example of this thinking was India's telecommunications sector that was opened up to the private sector in the early 1990s. This was followed by the setting up of the Telecommunication Regulatory Authority of India or Trai a few years later. Subsequently, the business of basic telephone services, run in large parts of the country by a government department, was hived off to a newly created state-owned enterprise. Something similar, in varying degrees, happened in other areas such as the insurance, airports, and power sectors. In addition, the Competition Commission of India (CCI) was set up to regulate and adjudicate upon issues of market dominance and practices that undermined competition in various sectors. The principle was clear: Let the government frame the policy (and not run a business), while independent regulatory bodies could enforce the policy by framing necessary rules. Another implicit assumption behind such a separation of responsibilities between the government and the regulators was about who should steer those regulatory bodies. To impart autonomy and independence to these institutions and insulate them from government interference, the pool of talent for hiring key personnel was widened. Experts and private-sector professionals in related fields, along with even retired members of the judiciary (though under some pressure as was seen when the legislation for setting up the CCI was framed), were among those the government believed could be hired to head these regulatory institutions. Thus, the first chairperson of the Central Electricity Regulatory Commission was an economist. Trai was set up under the chairmanship of a retired judge and its next chairperson was a former banker. Even the first capital market regulator was a banker in the late 1980s, and the first chairperson of the insurance sector regulator was a former chairman of the Central Board of Direct Taxes. The first full-fledged chairperson of the CCI was a retired Indian Administrative Services (IAS) officer. So, there was a mix of regulatory heads chosen from a pool of experts from both the government and the private sector. In spite of a few civil servants heading these institutions, the idea that continued to be pursued was to insulate regulation from the stranglehold or influence of the political executive. The third significant aspect of regulation in the early days of economic reforms was the framing of rules for appointing heads of regulatory bodies in a way that effectively ruled out conflicts of interest. Thus, a regulator would usually not be considered for another job in the government system after the completion of his or her term. The idea was that the regulator should be able to act freely and fairly without any expectation of future assignments from the government or the private sector. Indeed, one of the regulators under the law was, until recently, barred from accepting any government job after having served in that regulatory post. These were guardrails to preserve the integrity and independence of regulators. However, the situation with regard to the last two assumptions behind the regulatory framework has changed.

Centre might need to do business with J&K's mainstream parties. Even if it's painful for Modi

For fifty-two hours one summer in 1893, rain fell across Kashmir. A bear and a panther were found drowned side by side, their ancient hatred forgotten; ponies and cattle climbed into the verandahs of the elegant homes on the right bank of the Jhelum river. Faced with the wall of water, colonial civil servant Walter Roper Lawrence writes, the villagers of Tullamulla ripped the holy flags from their shrines and planted them along the flood plain to warn the waters away. Even nature, they reasoned, would not dare insult the ancient saints. Everyone wasn't pleased with this deep popular faith—or charlatanism, if one so wished to call it. Kashmir was entering a new period of religious ferment amid messianic claims that the flood had been retribution for the sins of its people, like the Flood of Nuh, which destroyed the idolaters. Armed with ideas from Aligarh and Lahore, Mirwaiz Rasul Shah, the head of Srinagar's Jamia mosque, set about eradicating bid'a, the syncretic folk practices woven through folk Islam. In 1889,

Rasul Shah established a seminary, the Nusratul Islam, at Rajouri Kadal, the first formal school offering both secular and religious education to Kashmir's Muslims. The seminary, today known as the Islamia School, flowered into an educational organisation, the Anjuman-i-Nusratul Islam. "Islam is a sick child that needs its mother's care and sympathy," one student at the Islamia School declaimed. In his public speeches, Mirwaiz Rasul Shah left little doubt about what that was: The deification of saints and veneration of holy relics were Hindu practices which had corroded Islam from within. Late in the 19th century, scholar Yoginder Sikand writes, the neo-conservative Ahl-e-Hadith began to preach an even more austere new faith based on the laws of Sharia. The kernels of an Islamist movement had been planted in Kashmir's flood-ravaged soil. This month, almost unnoticed outside Kashmir, the Home Ministry banned the Awami Action Committee, the political platform that emerged from the Anjuman-i-Nusratul Islam.

Trump believes Zelenskyy will have to give access to critical minerals

Mahesh Singh

Despite Ukraine's resistance, Trump believes Zelenskyy will have to give access to critical minerals in return for any future US support. Some in the Trump administration suggest Kyiv should provide Americans with those minerals in return for the US military and financial aid already received by Ukraine. Trump has blamed European leaders for not doing enough to end the Ukraine war. He has also complained for a long time that Europe has lived off the US for too long and it must pay for its security. Europeans have increased their defence budgets but not enough to survive without US support. In the face of changing US policy under Trump, European leaders are working on a plan to guard against a Russian attack. This involves a proposal to deploy tens of thousands of peacekeeping troops in Ukraine. The proposal has the support of Britain and France and is in response to Zelenskyy's request of 100,000 troops. But the idea doesn't have wider support in Europe. Germany, another big power in the continent. Donald Trump has spent only a month in his second term as the US President. However, he has disrupted the international order, weakened the Western alliance and created a sense of insecurity and uncertainty among its members, surprising even some of his supporters. There has been a paradigm shift in US foreign policy under Trump. He is now closer to Moscow than Washington's traditional allies. He has embraced the Kremlin's narrative on Ukraine and has sidelined US allies. Although senior members of the Trump administration have denied that the US has abandoned Kyiv and ignored its European allies, Trump himself has not made any serious attempts to pacify Ukrainians and Europeans. His closeness to Russia has been on display since he talked for 90 minutes on the phone with Russian leader Vladimir Putin, in which they agreed to start negotiations to end the Ukraine war, which will mark its third anniversary on Monday. Trump did speak to Zelenskyy soon after that call with Putin, but a nervous Ukrainian President warned that excluding his country from the talks would be "very dangerous". Events after that only made Ukrainians feel sidelined. Trump's Vice President, JD Vance, met European leaders in Munich two days later. But his comment that Europe will not be included in the peace talks only helped fuel the speculation that they were being left out of the future of Ukraine, which is closer to their homes and in which they have invested a lot of money and effort since the Russian invasion. Vance's meeting with Zelenskyy did not go well either as the Ukrainian leader refused to give access to the country's vast reserves of critical minerals unless he was given security guarantees. That angered Washington. Ending the Russia-Ukraine war was Trump's major campaign promise. But hardly anyone expected him to brazenly take Russia's side and even blame Ukraine for the conflict, which he did. Last Tuesday, a US delegation led by Secretary of State.

Marco Rubio met the Russian delegation headed by Foreign Minister Sergey Lavrov in Saudi Arabia, to discuss peace. Ukraine was not invited. Putin—who had been shunned by the US and its allies since the invasion of Ukraine—was delighted. A frustrated Zelenskyy dismissed the Riyadh talks as worthless. Trump did not like those comments and called the Ukraine President a dictator, even accusing him of starting the war. Zelenskyy said the US President was living in a Russian-made "disinformation space". This infuriated Trump, who does not take kindly to any criticism.

The proposal has been dismissed by Russia, which currently has about 600,000 troops in Ukraine. But even Britain and France, with much smaller armies than Russia, can't send troops to Ukraine without some backup from the United States. And that looks unlikely, for now. Trump's Ukraine envoy, General Keith Kellogg, who visited Kyiv and met Zelenskyy on Thursday, said all options must be open to deal with the outcome of peace talks. But he knows that any decision to provide any US military cover will be made by Trump who looks less inclined to do that.

He described Zelenskyy as "a modestly successful comedian" who "talked the United States of America into spending $350 Billion, to go into a War that couldn't be won, that never had to start, but a War that he, without the U.S. and 'TRUMP,' will never be able to settle." Trump's behaviour towards Zelenskyy is in stark contrast to Biden's, who had backed Ukraine against Russia with all the possible military and financial aid. President Biden travelled to Ukraine many times since the Russian invasion in February 2022 to display his administration's full support. He also promised NATO membership to Ukraine at a future date. Russia was severely punished for invading Ukraine. The US joined hands with its allies to isolate Moscow. Russia faced tough sanctions and its assets in the West were seized. The International Criminal Court issued an arrest warrant against Putin for alleged war crimes in Ukraine. There were even plans to put Putin and his close allies on Nuremberg-style trials. Until a year ago, Ukraine's leader was talking about even liberating all its territory, including Crimea, which Russia annexed in 2014, with the help of Western military equipment. Ukraine even succeeded in occupying the Russian territory of Kursk, which it had thought would be used as a bargaining chip during negotiations with Moscow. But all that now looks like a distant dream. With Trump back in the White House, Ukraine fears that Russia will be allowed to keep all the occupied territory as part of the deal to end the war. Kyiv is now likely to be denied NATO membership. That could be a promise to Russia to end the war. The US under Trump has now even opposed calling Russia an aggressor in a G-7 statement being prepared to mark the third anniversary of the war. The US team removed the phrase from the first draft, which was prepared by Canada, the current holder of the group's presidency. It is not just Ukraine, America's European allies are also now nervous about the intent of Trump. Since the Second World War, they enjoyed the US security umbrella under NATO. But now they are unsure if the US under Trump will honour Article 5 of the NATO.

China isn't panicking about the US. It's looking at new EV markets for world dominance

Rashi Singh

In China, tariffs on electric vehicles by the United States are not considered mere trade restrictions but a direct challenge to the country's growing dominance in the global EV market. Far from dwelling on short-term disruptions, these tariffs are framed as catalysts for strategic shifts—igniting a new era of self-reliance, technological innovation, and market expansion. New regions beyond the US are now part of China's EV strategy. Southeast Asia, the Middle East, and parts of Africa now present more favourable opportunities, with fewer regulatory hurdles and growing demand. The tightening of tariffs by the West has only pushed China further into these regions. Chinese data shows that BYD's market share in Singapore reached 14.4 per cent of all new car registrations in 2024, marking a historic achievement for a Chinese brand. EVs are central to China's long-term economic, technological, and environmental leadership vision. The strategy focuses on bolstering domestic innovation, ramping up investment in battery technology, and shifting toward regions with fewer trade barriers. For China, Western tariffs present an opportunity to refine policies, enhance industrial competitiveness, and reduce reliance on foreign markets. It seems China's push to accelerate its EV sector is unrelenting. The upcoming China EV 100 Forum (28-30 March) in Beijing, featuring key players from China's EV and tech giants, underscores this drive. As one Chinese vlogger observed, the goal is clear: China wants to foster scientific and technological innovation that will elevate its global standing and position it as a leader in the automotive industry. A major theme in Chinese discourse is the push for greater self-reliance in EV technology. In response to the imposition of Western tariffs, China has redoubled efforts to develop homegrown solutions that will succeed both domestically and globally.

UGC's Latest Caste Rules: When The Cure Worsens A Disease

Abhianv

The malaise of casteism took the lives of Rohith Vemula and Payal Tadv. Their parents have pleaded with the Supreme Court of India to treat this malaise on campuses. If they needed medical advice on the inefficacy of an existing treatment for a physical malaise, then the physician may have mistakenly recommended something less effective to them. This is the case with the University Grants Commission's (UGC) response to the parents of Rohith Vemula and Payal Tadv by proposing the 2025 draft regulations on equity. The draft tapers down the existing regulations of 2012 as it narrows the definition of caste-based discrimination, adopting a non-intersectional approach, and dispensing with commonly recurring situations of discrimination and the effects thereof. The 2025 regulations define discrimination as "unfair, differential, or biased treatment or any such act against any stakeholder on the grounds only of religion, race, caste, sex, place of birth, or any of them". The isolated definition of caste-based discrimination as "only against the members of the scheduled castes and scheduled tribes" excludes the broader ways in which it operates. For example, a dairy caste Gujar student may be denied entry into a sponsorships and accounts-keeping committee on the assumption of being unreliable and unworthy of trust. In contrast, a trader caste Vaish student may be preferred on the assumption that Vaish people are good with money. A priestly caste Brahmin student may be placed in a supervisory role on the assumption that Brahmins are morally upright and trustworthy. As much as this is caste-based discrimination, it would not be addressed in the 2025 draft regulations despite Gujar being a protected legal category of Backward Classes. The 2025 draft wording "on the grounds only of" has served as the rationale for non-intersectional interpretations. In 1981, the Supreme Court of India ruled that the alleged discrimination against air hostesses was not "on grounds only of" sex because of other factors that also constituted the category of air hostesses. This court ruling has established a non-intersectional approach to reading the given categories—of religion, race, caste, sex, place of birth—in Article 15 of the Constitution. "Or" places a mutual exclusivity in the given categories. It can be caste or sex, it cannot be both. The 2012 regulations facilitate the possibility of intersectional reading by replacing or with and: "based on caste, creed, religion, language, ethnicity, gender and disabilities." The prospects of the words "or any of them" in the 2025 draft could be interpreted as the intersectional operation of given categories.

It's a distant possibility contingent on the courts making this kind of interpretation. Until then, women and LGBT queer students in the SC and the ST categories will struggle to prove that the discrimination against them is on grounds only of caste, because it could well be because of their gender identity and sexual orientation along with caste. Discrimination can be better understood in the context of its commonly recurring situations. In addition to naming the specificity of students in the SC and the ST categories, the third clause of the 2012 regulation lists eight situations of discrimination that operate squarely within the framework of admissions. Other sub-clauses further list 17 situations that operate more broadly "on the basis of caste, creed, religion, language, ethnicity, gender and disability". Doing away with all these situations in the 2025 draft regulations shows that the contexts integral to applying anti-discrimination frameworks.

Women certified public accountants now make about 30% of the field, a significant increase from 8% in the year 2000. Among the 8.63 lakh students, 43% are female. The attractiveness of accounting and auditing in India stems from a number of factors, including the country's low tuition rates, the abundance of available jobs, and the attractive starting wage of Rs 12.5 lakh for a fresh graduate. In 2020, four out of six top scorers were female; in 2021, tions' implementation. He claimed that several courses were revised before reaching the Academic Council, circumventing academic process and endangering openness. Vice Chancellor Professor Yogesh Singh led the meeting, which confirmed Professor Rajni Abbi's appointment as Delhi University's South Campus director. The vice chancellor said the university is "fully prepared" for the National Education Policy 2020's fourth year of undergraduate study in 2025-26.

To eliminate normalization, NIA insiders said the agency is trying to run tests in one shift if possible. Candidates requested a change to the three-day program, according to the notification. Many candidates noted that the Haryana Teacher Eligibility Test (HTET) is also on July 26 and 27, and several applied for both. IITs introduce new, more adaptable multidisciplinary courses while discontinuing older dual degrees

Delhi: The classic five-year dual degree programs are being replaced by more adaptable, interdisciplinary options at the Indian Institutes of Technology (IITs). Students' goals and the needs of employers are changing, therefore universities are rethinking the traditional dual degree model, which was once seen as a practical way for students to get a Bachelor's and Master's degree in the same academic year. The BTech pool is growing, and several IITs are absorbing students from five-year integrated programs. Higher student turnout as a result of more inclusive reservation policies and lower enthusiasm from prominent politicians are factors propelling this change. A growing number of students

Over 60% of June three wheeler sales are EVs

Delhi: The Federation of Indian Automobile Dealers Associations reported that over 60% of three-wheeler retail sales in June 2025 were electric, indicating a strong increase in green mobility. From 55.5% in the same month last year, electric three-wheelers jumped to 60.2%. From little under 6% in June 2024, two-wheeler EV sales rose to 7.3%. The penetration of passenger electric vehicles—cars and SUVs—rose to 4.4% from 2.5% a year earlier. EVs made up 1.6% of truck and bus sales and 0.1% of construction equipment sales in the business sector.

June car retail sales reached 2 million, up 5% year-over-year. Construction equipment sales rose 55% due to infrastructure spending. Tractor sales grew 9%, passenger vehicles 2.5%, commercial vehicles 6.6%, and two-wheelers 4.7%. FADA president C.S. Vigneshwar said early monsoon rains and the rise in electric vehicle options had influenced customer purchase decisions, especially for two-wheelers. He noted that incentives and fresh bookings helped passenger vehicle sales, but liquidity and geopolitical concerns remain. According to experts, EV penetration across several industries is nearing an inflection point.

Centre will borrow 8L cr, 54% of the objective

The government plans to borrow Rs 8 lakh crore, 54% of its Rs 14.8 lakh crore FY26 borrowing, in the first half. It didn't frontload the borrowing program to avoid raising rates while the RBI pumped record liquidity into the system. Since the market reported little demand for 30-year and longer bonds, the government announced it would borrow less in FY26. Thus, front-loading of the borrowing program has been avoided due to government (fiscal consolidation without compromising quality of expenditure).

Elon Musk says Tesla will ask shareholders about investing in xAI

Delhi : Elon Musk says Tesla will ask shareholders about investing in xAI. After the Wall Street Journal reported that SpaceX would invest $2 billion in xAI, the billionaire spoke. Musk wrote on X that shareholders decide whether to invest in xAI. Musk also asked X users last year if Tesla should invest $5 billion in xAI, saying he was testing the waters. It's not my call. To my mind, Tesla should have invested in xAI long ago. Musk replied to a post that a shareholder vote will be held. In reaction to ChatGPT's popularity, Elon Musk founded xAI in early 2023. Since then, the company has released its Grok AI chatbot, which was updated to Grok 4 models. The chatbot rivals ChatGPT, Gemini, and Claude. Musk merged xAI and X earlier this year, valuing the AI startup at $80 billion and X at $33 billion. Musk wants $200 billion in investments in the combined business, Bloomberg reports. Tesla investing in xAI looks to be part of his aim to integrate his corporate empire. image.png

ICICI Prudential Mutual Fund to sell 10% of Rs 10k crore IPO

Delhi: Another huge IPO is anticipated for this year. Prudential Corp of UK, ICICI Bank's joint venture partner in ICICI Prudential Asset Management, is selling 10% of the company through an IPO worth roughly Rs 10,000 crore. ICICI Bank, the fund house's primary owner, said AMC filed the filings with Sebi. Two IPOs over Rs 5,000 crore have occurred this year: HDB Financial Services, an HDFC bank unit, completed its 12,500-crore IPO last month. February saw Hexaware Tech raise roughly Rs 8,760 crore. ICICI Prudential AMC manages I-Pru MF, which manages over Rs 9.5 lakh crore in investors' assets (AMFI data for April-June quarter). ICICI Bank owns 51% of the fund firm and the UK financial giant 49%.

8th Pay Commission Could Hike Salaries 30–34%

Delhi : Central government personnel and pensioners may receive large wage and pension increases. Ambit Capital expects the 8th Pay Commission will propose a 30-34% increase in effective take-home pay, more than double the 14.3% hike under the 7th Pay Commission. The 8th Pay Commission, however unformed, may be launched in 2026-27. This modification is expected to cost the government Rs 1.8 lakh crore annually, compared to Rs 1.02 lakh crore for the 7th Pay Commission rollout in FY17. This expected increase is driven by the fitment factor, a multiplier for revised pay. Ambit Capital expects a higher fitment factor than the 7th Pay Commission 2.57. One important point: A new Pay Commission eliminates the Dearness Allowance (DA), which is currently 55% of the basic wage. Even if nominal basic pay rises dramatically, salary calculation is recalculated. For example, the 6th Pay Commission made Rs 7,000 a take-home wage of Rs15,750.

All EU and Mexico imports will be subject to 30% tariffs as imposed Delhi : President Trump of the United States has decided to levy a 30% tariff on goods imported from Mexico and the European Union, with the duty going into effect on August 1. The new tariffs on two of the US's most important trading partners were announced by Trump in separate letters uploaded to his Truth Social platform. He blamed a trade imbalance with the European Union and what he saw as Mexico's involvement in illegal immigration and drug trafficking into the United States. Trump levied a 50% tariff on copper and more tariff announcements for over 20 nations earlier this week. These nations include Brazil, South Korea, Japan, and South Korea. The tariffs are more severe than the 25% tax that Trump levied on Mexican imports earlier this year, with the exception of items that enter the US through the US-Mexico-Canada Agreement.

Even if the visa is approved, the individual may still face deportation proceedings

According to the US embassy in India, if they do not comply, their visas will be revoked and they will be deported. Representational picture The visa process has become more stringent under the Trump administration. Tesla May Start Indian Deliveries in August

Delhi : Tesla Inc. will open its first showroom in India and begin deliveries next month, according to sources, as the Elon Musk-led electric vehicle maker seeks to capitalize on demand in the third-largest auto market to offset slowing sales elsewhere. The Mumbai showroom will mark

Tesla's formal market entry, giving prospective customers access to pricing, variants, and trim

options, according to one person, who requested anonymity, and Bloomberg News documents. Last month, Bloomberg News claimed that the Mumbai store was opening in mid-July and that the first Model Y rear-wheel drive SUVs from Tesla's China factory had arrived. People say a second Tesla showroom in New Delhi would open in late July. Tesla's highly anticipated foray into the Indian market comes at a vital time for the EV maker, which suffered a drop in global sales in the second quarter despite Musk's claims that business.

JPMorgan may reduce EM Bond Index China, India shares

Delhi: JPMorgan Chase & Co. may reduce the weight of China and India, the major bond issuers in its flagship emerging-market index, to reflect more developing-nation debt. According to Bloomberg documents, the Wall Street bank is seeking customer opinion on changes to its GBI-EM Global Diversified index, which tracks local-currency developing-nation debt by more than $200 billion of assets. According to the documents, cutting a cap on individual countries

Delhi: Trump's newest tariff announcements have raised uncertainty, and purchasers are anticipated to postpone new orders. Textile exporters seem to have an advantage over Bangladesh, which Trump has slapped with 35% duty, but industry is watching India's bilateral trade deal with the US because Trump claims the agreement with Vietnam allows him to impose a 20% tariff, although there may be exceptions. As usual, countries like Bangladesh are racing to Washington to equalize tariffs in the coming weeks. We must monitor tariffs. Buyers are confused, "SNQS International managing director V Elangovan said from Tirupur. "Retailers must stock shelves.

How Delhi's Delivery Boys Got Involuntary Into Drug Dealing?

Delhi : Dashrath Kumar appeared to be just another delivery kid going about his business at first look. He was able to blend in with the crowd while wearing a red t-shirt donated by one corporation and carrying an orange bag from another. While onlookers were oblivious to it, authorities had been keeping tabs on Kumar while they investigated a bootlegging business. He was taken into custody and a significant amount of illegal alcohol was confiscated. The narrative of Sourabh is remarkably similar. He gave in to his vices and started delivering alcohol on the side while working as a delivery boy for an online retailer. He needed the extra cash. He ended himself in police custody after running afoul of the law as a result of this decision. Both incidents show how the bootlegging industry takes advantage of those who work in the gig economy by hiding behind the image of a nice delivery boy. In the southeast Delhi neighborhood of Govindpuri, 25-year-old Khurshid was apprehended in an abnormally large e-cart bag containing 400 quarters of booze that was stamped "For sale in Haryana only."

Google under CCI investigation over gaming firm complaint

Delhi: India's Google regulatory issues are growing. In 2022, the Competition Commission of India (CCI) fined the US tech giant for abuse of dominant position in its Play Store and Android mobile device ecosystem. Now, the fairplay regulator is investigating a complaint filed by gaming company WinZO. CCI directed its investigation arm to investigate and report within 60 days after finding a prima facie case. "Based on the facts and circumstances of the case, the commission believes Google is in violation and justifies further inquiry. The CCI bench, chaired by Ravneet Kaur and three members, ordered the director general to investigate. A Google spokesman declined to comment. WinZO, an online gaming company, claimed that Google's Play Store prohibits Real Money Game hosting. "Due to Google's unreasonable and restrictive policy, all apps offering real money games of skill are only available for download from their website (a process called sideloading)," it told CCI. On Android devices, using this process to reach WinZO displays a disclaimer/warning, tarnishing its image. WinZO stated warnings are without validity and "completely illegal" and cost the company. It also claimed Google displays another "baseless warning" when users pay for skill-based games. "Such payment warnings are arbitrary as Google has not set any criteria for displaying them," WinZO complained to CCI. The gaming company also claimed that Google has enabled DFS and Rummy downloads on the Play Store as part of a pilot project while restricting their app store availability. This action, it stated, "eliminate the level-playing field and create a false perception of legitimization of DFS and Rummy over all other games of skill." It claimed the policy "discriminatory and arbitrary, constituting abuse of its dominant position."

"Centre has no jurisdiction to allow its investigating agency to come in my state against my consent. Such an act is unconstitutional. It would be an encroachment on the rights and jurisdiction of the state and its police.
